IMMIGRATION OVERVIEW

Whether you plan to stay in Chicago or move to another city, the information on this guide should not be construed as legal advice and does not include all of the information you need to know. It is only a guide to help you get started.

PAROLE

Some migrants and asylum seekers have been “paroled” into the U.S. at the Southern border, allowing them temporary stay. Parole is granted for limited periods to serve a specific purpose, and individuals are expected to leave when it expires unless they obtain another status. Although parole allows entry, it does not grant immigration status or formal admission under immigration law. This occurs when a noncitizen enters with a visa or other entry document.

ASYLUM

Asylum is a type of protection that allows a person to stay in the United States instead of being sent back to a country where they fear returning due to persecution. Asylum is not guaranteed. People who are seeking asylum need to apply for it and demonstrate to the government that they qualify.

TEMPORARY PROTECTIVE STATUS (TPS)

TPS provides temporary protection from deportation and a work permit for individuals from countries experiencing armed conflict, environmental disasters, or other extraordinary conditions. Living in a third country before entering the U.S. can also affect eligibility. If granted TPS, you must re-register during all future periods to maintain your status.

LEGAL ORIENTATION

The information on this guide should not be construed as legal advice and does not include all of the information you need to know. It is only a guide to help you get started.

NOTICE TO APPEAR (NTA)

A Notice to Appear (NTA), or Form I-862, is issued by the U.S. Government to individuals they believe are in the country without permission. Receiving an NTA initiates an immigration court case. It may include the date and location of the next court hearing, but sometimes this information is not provided. You may receive a separate hearing notice by mail. If you don't know your hearing date, check the immigration court system, which may take time to update. It's advisable to check weekly for updates.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS & CHANGE OF VENUE

It is common that migrants will need to change their address with the government when arriving to a new destination. Also, it is important migrants are aware of their current cases pending with immigration, whether it be with immigration court and/or USCIS.

NOTICE TO REPORT (NTR)

A "Notice to Report" (NTR), also known as Form I-385, is a document the U.S. government started giving to people who crossed the Mexico-United States border in the spring of 2021. Typically, the form tells the individual to report to an Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) office within 60 days. Please note that the Notice to Report is NOT a Notice to Appear in immigration court.

ICE CHECK-INS

When you receive your Notice to Report, you must report to ICE within 60 days. You can schedule your appointment on the ICE website or call the ICE Detention Reporting and Information Line at 1-888-351-4024 for assistance. If you encounter difficulties, document your attempts, including taking screenshots of the website scheduler.

At the ICE check-in, you may receive a Notice to Appear and will likely need to provide a photo and fingerprints. ICE might also place an ankle monitor on you and schedule future check-ins.

LEGAL SERVICES
