

Parole in Place (PIP) for Undocumented Spouses and Children

What is Parole in Place (PIP)?

- On June 18th, 2024, President Biden issued an executive order allowing undocumented spouses and children of US citizens to apply for Parole in Place (PIP).
- Those granted PIP will be able to apply for work permits and protection from deportation for three years.

Could PIP help me get a Green Card?

- Currently, many undocumented spouses of US citizens must leave the US to apply for Green Cards, risking a 3- or 10-year return bar due to previous unlawful presence.
- Those granted PIP may be eligible to apply for a Green Card without leaving the US.
- Note: PIP will not waive other bars that prevent someone from getting a Green Card, such as criminal offenses or document fraud.

Who is eligible for PIP?

Individuals who:

- Are present in the US without admission or parole (ie entered without a visa)
- Have been legally married to a US citizen as of June 17, 2024; AND
- Have been continuously and physically present in the US for at least 10 years as of June 17, 2024.

Stepchildren of US citizen spouses who:

- Have been physically present in the US without inspection;
- Are unmarried;
- Are under the age of 21; AND
- Were under age 18 when their undocumented parent married their US citizen stepparent.

What should I do to apply?

- Gather and organize documents to submit with application. See other side for checklist.
- Meet with an attorney or a DOJ accredited representative to complete a screening, ensuring you're eligible for PIP and not risking deportation.
 - Notaries are not qualified to review documents and prepare forms
